Minnows Caught in Autumn and "Bottled Up" Splendid Lures for Fish.

By ROBERT PAGE LINCOLN.

Pickerel fishing through the ice is now on in New York and all the New were very tame and were easily shot." England States. Also in the Canadian provinces.

There is one thing that should not be forgotten by the man who goes out after winter pickerel. That is this: Do not forget to have gloves upon your hands or in your endeavor to hold the ine running out you will saw ragged uts in the hand. Cotton gloves will do for this work.

There is not a little skill necessary the hook when after pickerel, or any readily. ish for that matter. The living lure whould not be hooked into the stomach. as that fish soon dies.

In the case of the tenacious skinned perch the hook can be inserted rightthe skin without entering the However, most of the minnows ice fishing are hooked right back the dorsal (the back) fin, not o deep down as to injure the back-one, or even touch it. So hooked the lure is given the greatest of freedom in swimming about, so making himself attractive to the preying fishes. While it truly may be said that the perch is the sh that makes up the main feature on the pickerel's daily bill of fare, there are minnows that are as good.

Glittering Shiner Desirable.

Chubs and shiners of the ordinary sort are excellent if they are obtained in the three or three and a half inch size. n a case of this sort they are even better than the perch; and the glittering shiner is perhaps the most desirable of them all if it can at all be obtained. In the Eastern States there is found very highly desirable fishing minnow, The red-fin is a member of the carp family and while some of this species do attain to a length of eight to ten inches, still the average generally far below shat in length, my three inches for a good sized redfound in the breoks.

When you have discovered a deep hole where minnows are gathered you let down this hoop net. Then at an agree-able distance from the bottom you hold it there and then you drop down a handful of cracker crumbs, a little at a time, so that these crumbs fall over the net, the idea being to entice the minnows over the net. Often a whole "drove" of them will so be lured in over the net when, with a swift motion, it is drawn to the surface, the minnows caught unawares. Judging Ethics and Tactics. To give every dog a fair examination, without fear or favor, is in my opinion the first duty of a judge in making his awards, and the duty becomes the more imperative when a jury of experts has under consideration the placing of the trophy for the best of all breeds at a show. On this account I think the trio to select Ch. Conejo Wycollar Boy for that distinction at the Westminster Kennel Club show, Dr. Norman K. Swire, T. S. Beilin and William E. Warner, were remiss in not having the four held in for the final placing walked in the ring. Action is so important as a proof of soundness that it should never be overlooked, and when the climax of four days' judging has been reached a very always to be commended. SKIPPER ENGAGED FOR THE VANITIE

Capt. Gautesen Will Be the Professional in Charge of Cup Yacht.

Now that he has taken commind of the sloop Vanitie, Rear Communication George Nichols of the New York 74-Club is leaving no stone unturned in his campaign to make the Gardner designed craft the defender of the America a off Sandy Hook next July. He has en gaged a professional skipper, who so will start work to ship a racing crev. The professional who will have a reof Vanitie is Capt. G. A. Gautean Undoubtedly he is the best man that could be found for the berth. He knows Vanitie, as he was mate on her when she was under charter to former Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt during th summer of 1915. That year Vanitie was sailed by Capt. Chris Christiansen who is to be the saliing master of Resolute, the yacht that will fight out with Vanitie for the honor of meeting Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock ! In 1916 Capt. Gautesen shipped as the sailing master of Carolina, the ifoot racer that belongs to Rear Con modore Nichola. It was on the streng of his handling of Carolina that Cape Gauteson was chosen for the important position of training the racing cras-of an America's Cup boat.

When racing was stopped on Land Island Sound because of the war Cape Gautesen shipped as the sailing master of the schooner Karina, now the prop erty of Rear Commodore Mayer of the Atlantic Yacht Club. He was in charge of the big schooner last summer. Capt Gautesen is a splendid saflor and a ideal man to ship together a crew f Vanitie.

Times have changed and the profes sional skipper will not be such an portant factor in the next race for th America's Cup as he was of the late Capt. Charles Barr. Whether it is Vanitie or Resolute which will defend the cup the American yach will be raced by an amateur skipper In 1914 Sir Thomas also announced tha he would race Shamrock with an ama teur at the stick. Under the circum stances the professionals in charge of the yachts have their duties limited to the training of the crews. Another important link in the chair that Rear Commodore Nichols is forging to make Vanitie the cup boat is the placing of an order with Rebert Jacob to fit out the craft for the trial race: that are to be sailed against Reselui Jacob and have her fitted out at som other yard. It was to be done because Jacob had the contract to fit out Sham ock IV. and the New York Yacht Club thought that it would be better to have the two yachts put into commission a different yards.

the shore at Jacob's yards is solid ic-well out into the Sound. No one knows when the ice will break. Until it does it will be impossible to launch the craft and tow her to another yard. time is short and there is considerable men in charge of the craft decided to leave her at Jacob's. Rear Commodore Nichols was at
